Case A:
Together Outside – Neighbourhood Festival

Together Outside is a one-day festival in a local park. Neighbourhood volunteers organise it. The goal: bring people together. Let them enjoy food, music and activities.

There's a small stage with acoustic live music. A kids' zone. Food stands from local cooks. A free Zumba workshop. Volunteers spread flyers around the area. Most communication happens via WhatsApp.

Visitors bring their own chairs and drinks. The festival is free. Around 300–400 people come. There's no ticket system. Only basic facilities are available: rented toilets, trash bins, a first aid point.

Everything runs on volunteers. There's a simple plan. No professional security. No production team.
